Mr. Justice, for Special Committee, makes a report, which is ordered spread on the Journal, as follows:

To the Honorable the General Assembly of North Carolina:

The Commission appointed by his Excellency, the Governor, in pursuance to the joint resolution relative to the enforcement of the declared policy of the State with respect to freight discriminations, have the honor to report that on February 12, 1913, his Excellency, the Governor, and this Commission met the representatives of the interstate railroads doing business in this State, and undertook to accomplish the purposes for which this Commission was created.

Nothing transpired at the conference to cause any member of this Commission, or, as we are advised, his Excellency, the Governor, to doubt that the declared policy of this State with respect to this economic matter is sound. Representatives of the Southern Railway Company, the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company, the Norfolk and Western Railway Company, the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway Company, and the Carolina and Northwestern Railroad Company did not concede the soundness of the policy declared by the State, and represented that unless it should be made a National policy by act of Congress, or by proper orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and until there was a general readjustment by the railroads throughout the country of the entire rate situation, they could not strictly comply with the policy as declared by the State of North Carolina. They left as an open question what their attitude would be in the event the policy of the State should become the policy of the Nation.

These representatives nevertheless expressed their great desire and thier hope and impression that some action could be taken by the railroads that would remove the sense of injustice felt by the people of this State on account of the present freight rate situation.

They did not state that they had in mind any specific plan for the accomplishment of this purpose, but only that they entertained views that made it advisable and desirable that they be given an opportunity to work out with this Commission and his Excellency, the Governor, a plan which would bring about a substantial reduction and equalization in the matter of freight charges against which the State of North Carolina now complains. We were impressed with the earnestness of this request, and were pleased with the expression of the representatives of the railroad companies that it was made in good faith.

We report the expression of this desire on the part of the representatives of the railroad companies that the General Assembly shall enlarge the powers of this Commission somewhat in order that they may consider such plans as the railroad companies may have for conforming in some substantial way with the requirements of the State of North Carolina.

We take the liberty of suggesting that nothing should be said or done that would seem to embarrass the State in the exercise of its right and purpose to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission and to Congress for relief against the present act of Congress with reference to the charge for long and short haul of freights by railroads. We trust that if the General Assembly should act upon the suggestion of the representatives of the railroad companies, that concessions will be made by the companies that will go far towards immediately correcting present discriminations and unjust freight charges. If no satisfactory arrangement is arrived at between the representatives of the State and the railroad companies, it will still be open for the General Assembly to deal with the subject directly.

We are convinced that the sovereign State of North Carolina is not impotent in the present situation. No self-respecting State can, in the opinion of this Commission, and, as we are advised, in the opinion of the Governor, tolerate the unjust burdens imposed upon the producer, the dealer, and the consumer, and which prevent our legitimate commercial and business development. No State that is great in the character of its people will submit to this injustice without exhausting every means within its power to correct it. We believe that means are available to the State to compel justice to be done in this matter. If in the meantime satisfactory arrangements cannot be made by further conference between this Commission and his Excellency, the Governor, and the representatives of the railroad companies, the General Assembly will then be in a position to exercise its proper power to see that justice shall be done. We await further action and instructions by the General Assembly.

The course we have taken has the approval of the Governor.

Respectfully submitted,

E. J. JUSTICE, Chairman;
W. B. COUNCILL,
N. B. BROUGHTON,
Commission.

February 13, 1913.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

The House meets pursuant to adjournment, and is called to order by Mr. Speaker Connor.

The House resumes consideration of the Calendar.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Bills and resolutions are introduced, read the first time, and disposed of as follows:

By Mr. Weatherspoon: H. R. 1817, Joint resolution adopting the report of the Commission Relative to the Adjustment of Interstate Freight Rates.

Rules are suspended, and the resolution is placed on its several readings, and passes its second and third readings and is ordered sent to the Senate without engrossment.

The report attached to this bill is ordered recorded on the Journal of the House.

To the General Assembly:

The Commission appointed by his Excellency, the Governor, in accordance with the terms of a joint resolution adopted by you relative to the interstate freight charges, beg leave to submit the following report:

We, together with the Governor, acting for the State, have had two formal conferences with the managing officers of the railroad companies mentioned in exhibits "B" and "C," attached hereto. The result of the first conference has, heretofore, been reported to you during this session, and your action thereon in conferring added powers on this Commission is a matter of record upon the Journals of the Senate and of the House of Representatives.

The second conference with the representatives of these railroad companies was held on the 26th of this month. Prior to that date many arguments and suggestions were made to this Commission to convince it that the practices of the railroad companies, with reference to charges for transporting interstate freight, were proper.

We adhered to the attitude stated in our former report to you, and our position was fully stated to these companies in writing, and we attach hereto a copy thereof and mark it exhibit "A."

The companies submitted to us in writing a proposition, and we attach a copy of it to this report as exhibit "B."

Our response to these suggestions of the railroad companies was likewise in writing, and a copy thereof is attached as exhibit "C."

It will be observed from these exhibits that the Commission has not undertaken to limit or embarrass the State of North Carolina in the exercise of its rights to take any steps it may see proper.

We have proceeded with due regard to the fact that the State has all advantages as to its power to act in the premises and that these railroad companies are dependent, as are all business interests, and all citizens, on the State's honor and sense of justice, for their success. This we know, and we believe the railroad companies feel, is all-sufficient for them.

The suggestion by the railroad companies, that they will desist from the practice of hauling freight from the west through North Carolina points to the Virginia cities at a lower rate than is charged for hauling it to North Carolina, and the further suggestion, that inasmuch as freight from the west comes to Virginia cities at a low rate and can be brought into North Carolina on short hauls over the lines connecting these cities with North Carolina, that it should be hauled here at a lower proportional rate than is now charged, go far in removing the reasons for the discriminations and unjust charges so long and so bitterly complained of by the consumers and business classes of the State.

The suggestions made to us by the railroad companies are broad enough to cover any other rates charged to or from points in this State, either on incoming or outgoing freight, and in any direction, if the State through its constituted representatives thinks them unjust, and desires that they should be readjusted.

The principles contended for by the State no longer being challenged, though not admitted by the railroads, the question now open is, What would be fair charges for bringing freight into North Carolina from the west via points in Virginia, taking into consideration the low rate at which they get as far as the Virginia cities? Just what the numbered and lettered classes of freight and commodities should be hauled at in justice to the railroads and the State was not suggested by the companies.

We think that the revision of these rates involves technical investigation that will require considerable time and labor. The evident desire on the part of the companies was to remove all just causes that the people of North Carolina have for the feeling of injustice and resentment towards these transportation companies for their present discriminations and high charges.

Having entered upon an effort to correct these abuses, they cannot now desist or turn back without great embarrassment; and they having agreed upon the principles, we hope for substantial lowering of the present rates, and a policy that will not cause discrimination against the business interests of this State and in favor of certain Virginia points.

In no event, however, will the State be bound by anything except what its representatives may hereafter agree upon, while the companies are bound by the terms of their proposition.

We therefore recommend that the State appoint a commission empowered to confer with the railroad companies with respect to freight rates, and, if they can do so, agree on such rates as will be just to the State, not, however, empowering the commission to do any act that will thereafter embarrass the State in the exercise of any of its powers.

We believe that accurate knowledge with respect to the entire freight situation necessary to justly fix the rates that liberal provision for the employment of rate experts should be made.

If these differences between the people and the railroads can be adjusted in the manner herein indicated, it will result in a great saving of time and money.

We recommend that this report and the exhibits hereto attached be spread upon the Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives, and thus preserved as a precaution against loss, and consequent misunderstandings as to the State's position.

Respectfully submitted,

E. J. JUSTICE, Chairman;
W. B. COUNCIL,
N. B. BROUGHTON,
Commission.

This February 27, 1913.

SUGGESTIONS OF COMMISSION APPOINTED TO CONSIDER THE SUBJECT OF FREIGHT RATES.

Exhibit "A."

To the Representatives of North Carolina Railroads:

The arguments made by the representatives of railroad companies at their first conference with the Governor and the Commission, and the written and printed arguments furnished by these representatives, were made to justify the present practices of railroads in making interstate rates.

The resolution under which the representatives of the State are acting precludes this question, and extended discussion of it will not produce practical results.

The Commission has not agreed with the railroad companies that their practices in fixing interstate rates is economically sound, or that it is in any degree just to the people of this State.

An extremely artificial situation in the matter of freight rates has been created by the railroads.

It is certain, we believe, that a reduction and equalization of rates will increase the density of traffic and develop business in this State, so as to largely, and probably entirely, compensate the railroads for reduction of rates. In view of this opinion, we are not content to permit the present injustice to continue simply because the railroads are unwilling to take the risk.

The increase of traffic is an element that every railroad company considers when a new line is built. Few railroad lines would be constructed if they were not influenced by the development and increase of business. It is just that this consideration should have its influence on the question of the removal of discriminations in rates. It is scarcely necessary at this late date to cite further instances of the present unscientific results of rate making by railroad companies of this State.

We will cite one illustration of the result of the present conditions. It is not an isolated case, but is in line with most interstate business done in this State. It does not reach the difficulty to say that the correction of a few cited cases of injustice will be sufficient. The cited cases are not isolated, but illustrate the injustice of present general conditions.

In the city of Durham there is a grist-mill. The owner of this mill buys corn from Louisville, Ky., and ships same by the Southern Railway via Greensboro to Richmond for 10 cents per cwt., or $56 per car. If this grain stops in Greensboro, the freight is $162.40. This grain is reconsigned in Richmond, and 18 cents per cwt. freight is paid to Durham, and it is ground and the product is reshipped into Greensboro on the through rate of 18 cents.

This product costs, delivered in Greensboro from Louisville via this roundabout line, 28 cents per cwt., of which 10 cents is to Richmond and 18 cents is to Greensboro. If the produce had originally stopped in Greensboro on its way to Richmond, it would have cost 29 cents per cwt. Again, if it had been shipped from Louisville to Durham and its product reshipped to Greensboro, it would have cost, not only 1 cent per cwt., or $5.60 per car more freight, but the miller would have had to pay the Southern Railway Company 3 cents per cwt. backhaul privileges. By having this grain shipped to Richmond and reconsigning, the miller saves 4 cents per cwt., equivalent to $22.40 per car. This is as much profit as he makes on handling a car-load of corn meal, and unless he is prepared to overcome this by manipulating all rates, or, in other words, is prepared to reconsign in Richmond, he is forced to liquidate this $22.40, which the Richmond millers clear as net profit.

The argument that railroads should be privileged to charge, at will, less for a long than for a short haul, subject only to the restraint of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is economically wrong.

To allow railroads to charge less for the long than the short haul places an unjust portion of the total transportation expense on those who pay the higher rate for less service, and deprives the people as a whole of the influence of competition to keep rates at a reasonable level.

For instance, there is water competition between New York and Charleston; the people of those cities can take advantage of it at will, but when the Southern or other railroad lines make rates between those two cities to meet the water rates, charging higher rates at intermediate points, they create an artificial condition and destroy every element of competition, leaving the people no remedy, except appeal to overworked tribunals, which are unable to offer prompt relief.

By refusing to allow the railroads to charge less for a long haul, even when water rates are in effect, than they charge to or from intermediate points, there is not taken away from the terminal points any of their rights, as they can avail themselves of the water rates at will, and if for any reason they prefer or must have the rail service, it is more valuable and should receive greater compensation. No injustice is thereby done the railroads, because the Interstate Commerce Commission formally notified them about two years ago, in a decision refusing to permit a general advance in rates, that when it could be shown to the satisfaction of the Commission that the railroads were unable to earn a fair return on their investment, they would be given authority to make appropriate advances.

It was stated that the adoption by the railroads of the policy proposed by the Legislature would reduce the revenues of the Southern Railway approximately thirteen millions of dollars annually, basing this assertion on two propositions, neither of which is tenable, the first being that the policy would reduce the ton mile rates of the Southern Railway to a level of the C. and O. on at least some of its lines; the second being that, having adopted this policy in North Carolina, it would be necessary to apply the same policy to all the other States served by the Southern, which would in turn reduce the ton mile rate in all these States to a level with the C. and O.

The declared policy of the Legislature makes no reference to ton mile rates; it simply demands, for instance, that the rates to Greensboro from a given point shall not exceed the rates to Lynchburg, Va., Greensboro being intermediate. If the Southern handled no traffic except between Cincinnati and Lynchburg, their ton mile rate would be less than that of the C. and O., the Southern mileage being substantially greater; if they applied the Cincinnati-Lynchburg rates as maxima at Greensboro and Asheville, their ton mile rate would be higher, because the distance is less, provided the traffic was identical in character and volume; but there are no two cities where the traffic is identical in character and volume, hence it might easily happen that the same scale of rates from the common point of origin to different destinations would produce a lower average ton mile rate for the shorter hauls because of low class freight predominating, while higher class freight moved in greater volume to and from the more distant point. The ton mile revenue of a railroad is an average of all the tonnage hauled between all points, and is, therefore, of little value in arriving at a reasonable basis for any given rate or scale of rates; in arriving at this average ton mile rate, the railroads include their earnings on coal and confectionery, pig iron and pianos, stone and statuary, brick and bicycles, and so on indefinitely.

What part of the traffic moves between points that would be affected by the reduction asked for is problematical; it could be determined with a fair degree of accuracy by an analysis of the records of the railways; but until this is done one estimate of its probable volume is as good as another, and nothing short of a careful analysis of the records by a disinterested investigator would convince one that a large per cent of the total tonnage moving to and from the territory mentioned would be affected; the revenue on the tonnage would be reduced, not lost entirely. What the amount of the reduction would be is also very uncertain, probably not more than 25 per cent, on which basis the reduction in the revenue of the Southern Railway would be a small per cent, not on their entire line, but merely on a very small part of it.

The total freight revenue of the Southern Railway for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911 (the latest record available), was $39,498,961. The railway's estimate that to adopt the declared policy of the State of North Carolina and apply it over their entire line in other States would entail a reduction in revenue of approximately one-third, or $13,000,000, is very wide of the mark.

The second proposition, that if this policy were adopted so far as it applies to North Carolina traffic, it would be necessary to apply this principle over their entire lines in other States, and that it would be "unfair" to do otherwise, is untenable, because the policy of the Southern and all other railways is and always has been to treat every community as a separate proposition, and so adjust their rates to and from that community as to in their opinion meet what they consider competitive conditions surrounding that particular community, or make rates that in their judgment will best conserve their interests; in other words, rates that will permit of a reasonably free movement of traffic at as high a rate as possible.

With respect to Mr. Ruffin's illustration, at the first hearing, of a 19-cent rate on tobacco, Winston-Salem to Durham via the Norfolk and Western, a distance of 292 miles, against the Southern's direct line, while applying a 24½ cent rate from intermediate points, that is an economic waste. Unless the Norfolk and Western can afford to apply the 19-cent rate from intermediate points, they are handling this tobacco at very small, or no profit, while the Southern with its direct line can handle it at a good profit, with the result that every patron of these two railroads is penalized indirectly by this transaction. The loss of this business to the Southern reduces its ratio of revenue to tonnage handled; its acceptance by the Norfolk and Western increases its ratio of expense to tonnage handled. This is but a sample of thousands of cases where the railroads are handling traffic unnecessary distances, thus increasing the ratio of expense to revenue without performing any necessary service; and as a result of this economic waste, when a proposition to reduce rates is made, the railroads are able to present a more plausible argument, based on their record, that to do so would jeopardize their prosperity.

If the traffic moving between two given points is not sufficiently attractive to induce the long line to make the terminal rates the maximum at intermediate points, they should be debarred from engaging in the traffic at rates less than those applicable at intermediate points; and if the shippers at the terminal points can secure satisfactory service via the short lines, they should be required to pay a higher rate for this more expensive service.

Attention is directed to the following statistics taken from the Southern Railway's report to the Corporation Commission of North Carolina for the year ending June 30, 1911:

Freight revenue, entire line, $39,498,963.61.
Freight revenue, North Carolina, $9,617,523.26.
Per cent of North Carolina revenue to entire line, 24.35.
Mileage operated, entire line, 7,038.64.
Mileage operated, North Carolina, 1,465.95.
Per cent of North Carolina mileage to entire line, 20.8.
Gross freight revenue per mile of road, entire line, $5,609.09.
Gross freight revenue per mile, North Carolina, $6,561.19.
Per cent of North Carolina revenue to entire line, 116.
Net revenue per mile of road, entire line, $2,757.52.
Net revenue per mile, North Carolina, $3,841.62.
Per cent of North Carolina revenue to entire line, 139.
Receipts per ton mile, entire line, 966 mills.
Receipts per ton mile, North Carolina, 1,100 mills.
Per cent of North Carolina to entire line, 114.
Revenue per train mile, entire line, $2.32.
Revenue per train mile, North Carolina, $2.55.
Per cent of North Carolina to entire line, 110.
Tons carried one mile, entire line, 4,088,496,793.
Tons carried one mile, North Carolina, 873,972,169.
Per cent of North Carolina to entire line, 21.38.

With 20.8 per cent of the mileage, North Carolina produces 21.38 per cent of the tonnage and 24.35 per cent of the revenue.

The net revenue per mile of road on both freight and passenger traffic in North Carolina was $1,084.10 greater than on the entire line, or 139 per cent. The rate per ton mile in North Carolina was 14 per cent greater and the revenue per train mile was 10 per cent greater in North Carolina than on the entire line. As the total revenue of the Southern's North Carolina traffic was but $9,617,523.26, it is not accurate to contend that by reducing rates to and from North Carolina to the level of rates in adjoining States would reduce their income twelve or thirteen millions annually.

The contention that it will not help the State of North Carolina for the railroad companies to get out of the Virginia cities business is not sound. If they will get out of that business and let the freight from the west come by the C. and O. Railroad to Lynchburg and other Virginia cities, and thence into North Carolina at fair rates to North Carolina, the situation will be helped.

Corn from Cincinnati to Lynchburg via C. and O. lines is brought there for 10 cents per hundred, or about $62 per car (56,000 pounds car-load minimum).

What would be a fair charge for bringing the freight on over the Southern Railway Company's line an added distance of 114 miles to Greensboro?

Certainly, not the present difference between the Lynchburg and Greensboro rate.

The rate to Greensboro now on a car of corn is $100 more than the rate to Lynchburg.

We do not desire to have further debate about the justice of this matter, for we recognize that has been settled by the General Assembly for us.

We have not the power nor the disposition to go behind what the General Assembly has said. The question now is, What will the railroad companies do to improve conditions?

When we have reported on this, and made proper recommendations as to what they ought to do, our duty will have been performed.

This position on our part has the approval of the Governor.

E. J. JUSTICE, Chairman;
W. B. COUNCILL,
N. B. BROUGHTON,
Commission.

This February 26, 1913.

Exhibit "B."

1. The carriers, if now engaging therein, will withdraw from business from the west to Virginia city points through North Carolina. This will be done, not because they consider carrying of such business at present tariff rates as economically unsound, but in deference to the sentiment of the North Carolina public on the subject. It will be done in good faith, but as a matter of current business management, with the understanding, however, that if any of them should hereafter resume such business, the State of North Carolina is to lose none of its rights as at present existing or such as it may hereafter have, in respect to such rate structure.

2. That the carriers will, for the purpose of these negotiations, recognize the principle of making a lower proportional rate from Virginia City points to North Carolina points than the rate now existing, and will endeavor to work out with this Commission what would be such reasonable reduction, this Commission or its representatives to sit with the representatives of the carriers in the effort to arrive at what is reasonable and proper in the premises; with the understanding, however, that, although actuated by the disposition to make sacrifices to fairly meet the view entertained in North Carolina that freight rates from the west to North Carolina points are unjustly discriminatory as compared with rates from the west to Virginia city points, the carriers are confronted with the difficulty that a voluntary reduction in these rates will, under the law as administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, doubtless be used to measure the rates into other territory and to bring about a reduction of the last mentioned rates. Because of the smaller density of traffic in the south as compared with trunk line and adjacent territory, it is impossible for the carriers to make or to stand such general reduction in rates. The view of the North Carolina public can, without incurring the serious consequences mentioned as to rates into other territory, only be met under an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission directing certain reductions to North Carolina points and holding that such reductions will not affect the rate into other territory.

Any arrangement reached is, therefore, to be carried out by an application by the North Carolina authorities to the Interstate Commerce Commission for such an order, and the carriers will coöperate in an effort to secure such reduction as may be agreed upon between the North Carolina Commission and the carrier: Provided, such order of the Interstate Commerce Commission will protect them from reductions, because of such reductions to North Carolina territory, in their rates to other territory; and Provided further, that if the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall not be in accordance with such agreement, the State of North Carolina shall not be precluded from such other action in respect thereto as it may be advised. If the Commission and the carriers fail to agree upon what would be reasonable in the premises the North Carolina authorities may in their discretion submit the question to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the carriers pledge themselves to facilitate and expedite the hearing and determination thereof in every reasonable manner, but the State is not hereby precluded from using any other remedy or any other action as it may be advised.

3. If there are any other questions with reference to the rate situation which either the said Commission or the carriers may desire to have considered, such questions may be taken up and considered with a view of adjusting them by agreement between said Commission and the carriers, and if not adjusted, the position of neither party to be prejudiced by such consideration or by anything herein contained. Any other questions, not presented and agreed upon, are left unprejudiced hereby.

4. Inasmuch as this is an effort made in the earnest desire on the part of the carriers to meet the sentiment of North Carolina and to remove causes of controversy in that State, the above suggestion is made with the understanding that if for any reason it is not acceptable to the North Carolina authorities, or a final adjustment is not reached thereunder, nothing therein contained is to be used to the prejudice of the carriers in any proceeding that may be instituted against them, or any of them, in respect to freight rates as regards North Carolina territory.

Exhibit "C."

We have considered the proposition made by the Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, Norfolk and Western, Norfolk Southern, and Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railroads.

We feel assured that this proposition was made in good faith, and with the intention of offering substantial reductions in freight rates affecting North Carolina.

We will report the proposition to the General Assembly, with the recommendation that it be adopted as a basis of negotiation.

We will make this recommendation to the General Assembly, with the hope that such negotiation will result in relief from present injurious discriminations and meet the reasonable demands of the people of the State and their representatives.
